
Hi everyone,

This year of 2020 is going to end soon. We can't help saying merry Christmas and happy new year!

So many stories, so many enriching ideas have been flowing. It is wonderful to see how those thoughts are connected. Thanks to all lumbung members and the harvesters who have recorded all the brilliant conversations. In the near future, we are going to transform the craft into a mini-newspaper. This text you are reading as well the visual you are seeing is its prototype.

We would like to share this prototype as a Christmas gift for all of us. It is in this mini-newspaper we are going to work collaboratively. Putra will work on the text and Abdul will create the visual. More conversations would happen among us as we are going to dive into the whole lumbung process. How it was started and what was brought into conversations.

PARTNERS, ALLIES,
Co-conspirators and Rebels alike

For this purpose, we already have an editorial board called Nongkrong Editorial. It is where all ideas are going to be formulated as well its directions. For instance, which angle we are going to capture and who are targeted audiences, as well as certain specific goals to reach. Putra and Abdul will be here. Now and then, it is also open to guest editors.

Just like its name, this mini-newspaper would be small as it could be printed on A4 or A3 paper. It could be downloaded and self-printed. As you could see in the picture, it has its own way of folding so that it could be read page by page. Also, it could be open widely like a poster. Up until now, we are still building our idea.

As time passes, hopefully, it will grow better.

Thank you for all the conversations. See you next year everyone. ☺

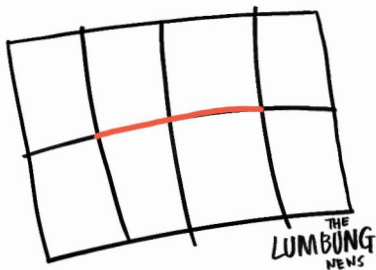

A low-angle photograph of a traditional building with a steeply pitched, thatched roof made of dried palm fronds or similar natural materials. The structure is supported by a framework of bamboo poles. A central door is made of woven bamboo. The scene is brightly lit, suggesting daylight. In the foreground, a wooden bench and some potted plants are visible, though slightly out of focus. The overall atmosphere is warm and rustic.

NAME PROTOTYPES

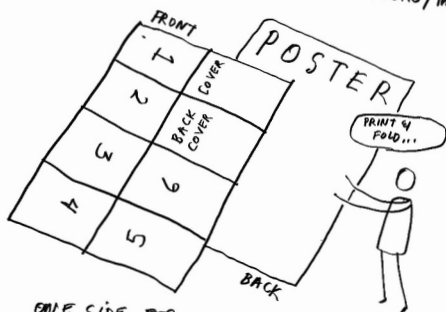

As you could see, there are four options for the name of our mini-newspaper. Do you have any preferences? Which one do you think is better? Does Lumbung Mirror sound awesome? Or Lumbung Gazette, or Lumbung Times, or Lumbung News? We are looking forward to hearing from you later. ☺
